Pittsburgh Accepts Invitation To Meet Trojans in Rose Bowl

JACKETS AND BULLDOGS CLASH TODAY

GEORGIA KEYED FOR LAST GAME THIS AFTERNOON

Players Romp Through Final Drill and Are Anxious To Meet Tech.

By Ralph McGill.
ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 6.—Looking 10 pounds heavier per man in their spanking new red jerseys and stockings which they will wear against Georgia Tech Saturday afternoon, the Georgia Bulldogs completed their final preparation this afternoon and went immediately to a club far from the city, where they will remain until game time.

Meantime the note of hysteria was creeping into Athens as the shadows of evening began to fall. Word had come back from Sanford field that there was no trace of injury, that the team had run through its final workout like a team of restless thoroughbreds, that there was an edge of nervousness that indicated a razor-like mental edge and that the boys were ready for the morrow come what may come.

GREAT CONDITION.
And the word that came back was true. If there ever was a finely conditioned team it is this one. There is no hectic flush on the condition there. Rather it is a vigorous one that bespeaks health and power. Unless the Bulldogs slip up somewhere tomorrow morning they will go into the game keyed up like the turnkey down at the jail.

The same lineup that started against Alabama will take the field at Tech. This confirms a previous guess by your correspondent that Harry Mehre, the head coach of the Bulldogs, would start some to his second string men.

An entire substitute backfield will start. These old Notre Dame men can't get away from their teachings. Tommy Paris will run at quarter in Austin Downes place. Johnny Davidson and Armin Waugh will run at the halves in place of Spurgeon Chandler and Marion Dickens. Jack the Ripper Roberts will change from the fullback position until Benny Rothstein is sent in.

FORMIDABLE BACKS.
This backfield, while it is not as good as the first string four, is never the less a formidable one. Harry Mehre would not be starting it if it were not. Jack the Ripper Roberts is the young man who broke the Alabama line with the assistance of the two red headed guards. He is the man who rammed Freddie Sington so hard that a couple of ribs snapped. Which is pretty hard. Pretty indeed. The line will be the original seven with Herb Maffett and Vernon Catfish Smith at the flanks, Bobby Rose and Senator Freddie Sington at the ends, and Red Leathers, the two death angels, at guards and Joe Ike Boland at center.

Before those two red headed guards started practicing like thoroughbreds eager for the test there was a little kicking practice. In it there were Armin Waugh, Catfish Smith, Spurgeon Chandler and Marion Dickens. They put on the finest exhibition of football aerial fireworks any field has seen all fall. They were each kicking about 55 yards and they were great booming kicks that went high enough to give the ends plenty of time.

PASSING PRACTICE.
They followed that with a passing practice, four men tossing passes, with Spurgeon Chandler's passes going accurately and with a fine degree of timing.

It was a splendid show and Chick Meehan, New York University coach, who looked on for a while, smiled his admiration.

It is because of that surplus of material and the finely coordinated work they have developed that one does not hesitate to name them as the winners in the contest Saturday. Against them Georgia Tech can offer only 11 men, not more than a dozen at best. And the Tech offense lacks the co-ordination that has been attained by the Bulldogs.

These boys and a dozen others will battle on the gridiron for the last time this afternoon when the Jackets of Georgia Tech meet the Georgia Bulldogs. After three years of hard toil in the moleskins they will romp their last time on Sanford field in the annual war between the two ancient rivals. Twenty thousand fans are expected to watch.

Wayward Boye Boswelled By Ed Danforth

All the world is waiting for the sunrise and Wayward Boye's forecast and patent detachable alibi on the Tech-Georgia football game which, according to reliable reports, will be played in Athens today.

Tech and Georgia have played four times since they hissed and made up after a long spell of not speaking.

In 1925 he picked Tech and the Yellow Jackets barely won, 3 to 0.

In 1926 he selected Georgia and the Bulldogs obliged him with a one-point victory, 14 to 13. What a day that was!

In 1927 he was the only expert who was sap enough to pick Tech and Tech done noble. In 1928 Tech won as generally predicted.

And today: GEORGIA.

When, and if, Georgia does it, Wayward's batting average on the state classic will be 1,000 in five starts.

ON THE OTHER HAND.

In discussing the game and explaining exactly how it will be played and won, Wayward out-experted them all. I reprint his forecast exactly as written:

"Georgia defeated Yale, North Carolina and Alabama mainly by superior line play and a never-say-die spirit. In the Alabama game, the Bulldogs' last start, they showed not only a line charge that was quicker and harder than the great Crimson Tide, but developed a line smashing and end running attack that made their forward passing game extremely dangerous and difficult to stop. The Bulldogs are young and just coming to a peak. They have no complexes to bother them and will outscore Tech on Sanford field Saturday.

"On the other hand, Tech has superior backfield threats in Dunlap, Mizell and Thomason. Tech's line has been steadily improving all season and, in the Alabama game, played the Crimson Tide to death when the Tide was at its best. Alabama scored with the aid of a 15-yard penalty at the goal line and again with a minute to play on an intercepted forward pass. Mizell is a great punter and Dunlap's passing will be hard for the inexperienced Bulldogs to stop. Tech showed great improvement in the Auburn game and is certain to wage an inspired battle against the Bulldogs. Tech figures to outscore Georgia Saturday.

"On the other hand, however, Georgia has a punter who can just about hold his own with Mizell and if the Bulldogs can play the sort of offensive football they showed in the last half of the New York University game they should win by two touchdowns, maybe more.

"Yet Tech is just about ready to play just another such game as it played against Florida and, in such form, will be unbeatable by any team in the conference. A victory for Tech is not at all unlikely.

"Georgia has just about mastered the intricacies of the Notre Dame attack and will show a finely co-ordinated team today, while Tech is still wrestling with a new system of play and cannot be proficient.

"Yet Tech is thoroughly familiar with the Notre Dame system, having played North Carolina, Florida and Notre Dame this year, and her team is composed mostly of veterans who will not be disconcerted because the plays are being executed by different players. And while Tech is familiar with Georgia's

PITT WILL PLAY IN ROSE BOWL

Panthers Accept Invitation To Meet Trojans New Year's Day.

By L. S. Cameron.

United News Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(United News.)—Selection of Pittsburgh to meet Southern California in the Tournament of Roses football game at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's Day, won favor among football fans and experts of this area today.

Although rather few gridiron enthusiasts of the extreme east have seen Pitt in action, the Panther is a popular fellow and so are his star players—among them, Ray Montgomery, guard; Joe Donohue, end; Pug Parkinson, fullback, and Octavius Lanza, better known as Toby, who were All-America choices on the United News team.

END BATTLE.
A battle-within-a-battle, one of the greatest of the season, may occur at one of the ends in the Trojan-Panther contest. Donohue will be opposed by Francis Tappan, another All-America end choice.

Among the other top-line U. S. C. players are Moses, a great climber, running fullback, and Saunders, one of the best quarterbacks in college football today.

Pittsburgh's unbeaten and untied team has a much better record than that of its rival. Pitt has played nine games, facing several formidable foes, and, save one, taking all by lopsided scores.

Nebraska held Pitt to 12-7. Pitt ran wild against a strong Ohio State team, crushed Carnegie Tech, Penn State and W. & J., and won the other games with ease and whole lots of points.

NOTABLE VICTORIES.
U. S. C. scored notable victories over Stanford, Oregon State, Washington, Idaho and Washington State, while dropping two games. Notre Dame took one of them, 13-12, while California surprised everybody else, if not themselves, by turning in a 15-7 triumph.

The Trojans have a record of 400 total points, 40 per game, and Pitt has 277 points, almost 31 per game. Against Pitt, 43 points were scored, an average of 4.87, while the U. S. C. rivals averaged 4.2.

Pittsburgh ought to be able to beat Southern California. No sooner was it known here that the game was definitely on than bets were laid. Several wagers at even money were recorded. It is expected that U. S. C. backers will ask for odds before game day. They will probably get them.

PITT FAVORED.
A prediction of a Pitt victory is based on two factors. Pitt appears to be better equipped with playing material. It came through in all of its biggest tests, while the Trojans failed in two.

The far coast game will be the second within three seasons for Pitt. On January 1, 1928, Stanford took a 7-6 decision over the Panthers in the Rose Bowl game. This year Georgia Tech won the game.

Real Football Crowd Rolls Into Athens—Big Push Scheduled to Start This Morning.

By Ralph McGill.
Constitution Staff Correspondent.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 6.—If there be any fond mothers inquiring "Where, oh where is my wandering boy tonight?" they might look in Athens with profit.

The crowd that saw the Yale game isn't going to be here for the Georgia-Georgia Tech game Saturday but it is going to be a crowd of 20,000 or more and that is enough people to worry the traffic cops. Oh yes. Ask any traffic cop. The game is probably drawing as many here as it would in Atlanta for the game, with two defeated teams playing, is attracting only the dead-game football fan who is coming to see his football game anyhow.

The fond mothers and papas are coming along but the crowd seems to be younger than the Yale crowd which pulled out a lot of people who had thought all along that Yale was a lock on the door and wanted to see with their own eyes before they gave up. They aren't coming for this one but the football crowd is. Consequently it will be wetter, wilder and louder.

Reports that thousands were streaming into Athens today were entirely without foundation. Hundreds were coming in but they included only those with reservations at the hotels or relatives who can move over.

The big push is coming Saturday morning beginning an hour or so before dawn and continuing until the hour of the game, which is 2 o'clock eastern time.

ROADS GOOD.
Roads are in good condition and the special trains out of Atlanta are expected to carry the bulk of the crowd. Motor automobiles will make the trip this time. They found out that they could do it at the time of the Yale game.

Down at the heart of the game this afternoon, which is at the business office, the word was that the tickets were moving swiftly and with pleasing pickup. The warm weather helped out. Today was delightful. Even overcast were superfluous. The word was that the day of the game would be balmy and clear, assuring a nice dry gutter for the boys who get the way.

Georgia, with one victory over Georgia Tech in something like a dozen years, wants this game with a mighty longing that only the defeated can know. They have been undergoing the torture of dives for years and somehow they feel that their thirst for a Tech victory is going to be slaked by a long, long drink in the cool of the evening as the shadows fall about Sanford field.

ALUMNI COMING.

Tech 'Defeats' Georgia, 19 to 13

Tech beat Georgia 19 to 13. That was last night at the supper party given by Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Robert, at the Piedmont Driving Club. Three hundred guests saw Warner Mizell run 45 yards for a touchdown with a forward pass, yelled as Stumpy Thomason circled end for 30 yards and a touchdown on an finally raised the roof as Stumpy returned a punt 55 yards for another touchdown.

Benny Rothstein intercepted a Tech forward pass and returned it 30 yards for Georgia's first touchdown and later backed a short distance for another.

The game was an indoor contest played over a canvas gridiron with the plays called off by a street fair wheel. Everett Strupper was referee and Bill Munday an announcer.

CRACKERS BUY STOCK, WINGO

Former Cincinnati Player To Catch for Atlanta Next Season.

By Ed Danforth.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 6.—Johnny Dobbs, busy as a grandmother shopping on Christmas Eve, bought a couple more players today for the Crackers, the club he will manage next year.

Milton Stock, manager in 1928 at Mobile, and leader of the Dallas, Tex., as League Club last summer, is coming to the Crackers to play third base next summer, it was learned late tonight.

It was announced early today that Irvy Wingo, former Cincinnati Red and manager of the Columbus (Ohio) club, had signed to catch for the Crackers next season.

Wingo stated that he was in excellent condition and that his arm was okay and ready for action. Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Robins, told Spiller that he believed Wingo would prove a big help to the Crackers. Wingo will hold down Yelle's place next season.

Dobbs and Stock were walking around talking to each other all day. Mr. Dobbs, when questioned, didn't say much, but it is a sure thing that he will leave Jimmy Johnston, purchased earlier, for the job of utility infielder.

Rel Not Informed.

Rel Jackson Spiller, of the Crackers, returned from Chattanooga Friday night to state that he and Dobbs had come to terms on the securing of Stock, and that if Stock had acquiesced to same, then he would wear the Cracker spangles this summer.

"I have heard nothing from Dobbs," said Mr. Spiller late last night. "He told me about Stock, I told Johnny what to offer him and Dobbs went after Milton. If Stock agreed to the terms, then I suppose he has been signed."

College Boys Unhampered.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 6.—(AP)—As the National Association of Professional Baseball Club Leagues closed its 28th annual convention today, it told the colleges and schools that they were unhampered.

Georgia Chapel Quakes As "Tech Is Wrecked"

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 6.—Probably the largest and certainly the most spirited mass meeting that has been held at the University of Georgia since the Civil War went through the process of "wrecking Tech" for two hours here tonight.

They held a pep meeting in the university chapel tonight. The chapel, which ordinarily has a maximum capacity of 600, accommodated more than a thousand. When they got through wrecking Tech, Coach Stegeman estimated that it would cost a thousand dollars to replaster the walls.

Many notices addressed the boys. First was Edwin Camp, former all-southern Georgia quarterback, who was brief. All he said was "wreck Tech." Then came Registrar T. W. Reed, who was also as brief but equally as concise. And then the football team came on the stage, led by Captain Joe Boland and Benny Rothstein. When the howling died down the roof was about to cave in.

Chick Meehan, coach of New York University, brought another section of the roof in when he said that Georgia was the greatest football team his boys played this year. "My players have been using the southern brogue ever since the game," he added.

yet went into the Yale game just an untainted crew of kids who might learn something from the big Blue team and afford entertainment for the crowd. The Bulldogs of Athens learned then and there that they could play football.

They went up to North Carolina a week later and tripped the team that had just defeated Georgia Tech. And with sophomoric inconsistency they managed to lose the next game in Jacksonville to an inspired Florida team.

Still unable to regain the elusive key to co-ordination Georgia lost to Tulane in Columbus after victory was within its grasp.

The Bulldogs plunged on to New York and met New York University and lost the game four touchdowns to three. But in that game they found midway the battle that they had a slashing offense themselves. They shouldered a four-touchdown lead and scored three for themselves in an astounding last-half rally.

STARTING POINT.
From that point, in the chill of the Yankee stadium, the Bulldogs swept right on. They took Auburn handily at home and wrecked Alabama in the big upset of the day at Birmingham.

The Yellow Jackets, shorn of their line strength of the year before by graduation and the next four games, with Tulane, Notre Dame, Vanderbilt and Alabama the Yellow Jacket line could not check the enemy and career only in a return bout tomorrow.

Coach Alexander took advantage of the ten-day period before Thanksgiving Day to install a new system of play. Through the next four games, the Yellow Jackets defeated Auburn handily Thanksgiving Day. In games won and lost the record comes out with that made by the 1926 team.

Georgia defeated two teams that beat Tech—North Carolina and Alabama. Tech defeated one team that beat Georgia—Florida. Both Tech and Georgia were defeated by Tulane. Both defeated Auburn. That comparison makes the situation seems to give the Bulldogs an edge.

Strib, Carnera Fight Tonight

PARIS, Dec. 6.—(United News.)—Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight, is a 7-to-5 favorite over Young Stribling of Georgia. The men are meeting here in a return bout tomorrow night. Carnera having won on a foul in their recent fight in London.

American bars in Paris are receiving bets from Brussels, Rome, Amsterdam, Madrid, London and other European cities to be placed on Carnera, although the odds offered are only 6 to 5. Americans abroad are backing Stribling, but have been getting 7 to 5 up to tonight.

V.P.I. Names Leader

ROANOKE, Va., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Byrd Hooper, of Newport News, was last night elected captain of the football team of V. P. I. for 1930. For the past two years he has been Tech's regular quarterback.

Pleasant Weather For Athens Game

Pleasant, warm weather is slated this afternoon in Athens for the Georgia-Georgia Tech football game, but unlike dancin and other evidences of exuberance on the part of the victors later may be dampened, the weather bureau here announced Friday.

The weather bureau said there might be clouds in the afternoon but not much fear of rain until evening and night.

Farrell Wins From Al Watrous, 6-5

By Walter Hagen, British Open Champion.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 6.—Leo Diegle, the champion, played like one all day today and left me standing on the short sixteenth green this afternoon with no place to go but home, or I should say, back to the hotel. Leo and I had a great match which gave the largest gallery I have ever seen in southern California, many thrills, and he beat me, 3 and 2.

Dixie Schedule Has Eight Tilts

By Associated Press.

Chief interest centers around the intercollegiate tilt between Oregon and Florida at Miami and the Georgia Tech-Georgia game at Athens, although throughout the Carolinas a lot of attention will be directed toward Durham, N. C., where North Carolina and Duke meet to settle another traditional rivalry.

The Tennessee Volunteers, undefeated in more than three years, will ring down the curtain at Knoxville by meeting the peppery Gamecocks from the University of South Carolina.

Oregon and Florida are both on the scene at Miami. They reached the City of Sunshine this morning and in the afternoon staged their final workouts in the Madison Square Garden stadium, where the game will be played tomorrow.

The old guard will be making its last charge at Athens where the remnants of last year's championship Tech eleven will square off against the young and frisky Georgia sophomore team, the sensation of the early season in the south.

It will be the last game of college football for five members of the Golden Tornado, namely, Captain Rusk, center; Mitchell and Thomson, halfbacks; and Westbrook, guard, and Watkins, tackle.

Three members of the Georgia team will be winding up their collegiate careers. They are Reddick, tackle; Frisbee, tackle; and Captain Boland, center.

North Carolina, which has not lost a game to Duke since the Durham school resumed football in 1920, is the favorite to win the contest at Durham.

The Tech-Georgia feud began back in 1893 and since that time the annual clash has developed into one of the outstanding traditional gridiron encounters of the country.

Stagg Bosses Big 10 Again

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, of the University of Chicago, was elected president of the Western Conference Football Coaches' Association and reappointed the conference's representative on the national football rules committee today.

Burt Ingwersen, football coach at the University of Iowa, whose future relations with the Big Ten was weighed by the conference faculty committee tonight, voted leading belief his school would be restored to good standing in the conference.

The football coaches recommended to athletic directors that no school be permitted to have more than two scouts at any one conference game. Previously the commonly accepted limit was one and so many schools made personal agreements to have two or more, that it was decided to make the limit two.

Attention was called to the athletic directors that the conference rule, forbidding cameramen along the sidelines during games, had been broken and that it should be enforced. It also recommended that no team be taken of the games unless both teams consented.

Wamby Sold.
KANSAS CITY, Dec. 6.—(AP)—William August Wambach, better known as Bill Wamby, has been sold by the Kansas City club of the American association to New Orleans, of the Southern association, George Muehlebach, owner of the Kansas City club, wired the star tonight from the baseball meeting at Chattanooga, Tenn. Wamby is an infielder.

Mrs. Chapman Wins
PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. John D. Chapman, of Greenville, Conn., today easily defeated Mrs. Emmet French, of Youngstown, Ohio, in the final of the ninth annual Carolina tournament for women here. She won, 8 up and 6 to play.

The SPORTLIGHT by Grantland Rice

Phil Scott, the heavyweight of England, has temporarily eliminated Victor Campolo, the heavyweight champion of South America. But in the battle of all nations, including the Scandinavian, he is now face to face with greater trouble in the Norwegian delegate from Chicago by the name of Otto Von Porat.

Otto Von Porat isn't as large or as tall as Senor Campolo. He is a much smaller hornet with a much more poisonous sting. When he tags he appears to mean it. Scott is a good boxer, a skillful defensive boxer, and it will be largely a question as to whether or not he can jab Von Porat off balance and keep him away when they tangle up on Monday night.

If Scott makes the mistake of leaving an opening through which Von Porat can toss a chunk of leather, the British champion will be taking a short cut to sudden trouble. For Von Porat can hit. He can hit hard enough to hurt any one. He has been improving in his speed and technique through the last year and he will be nobody's set-up at his next start. He will find Scott the type of boxer who is none too easy to tag. The British entry, being a normal human being, doesn't like it on the chin, and he can take fairly effective precautions when it comes to keeping his chin out of the danger zone. But it is no certainty he will keep it away from the ambitious Norwegian who now seems intent upon moving into polite pugilistic society and staying there.

THE NATIONAL CHAMPION.
Queries continue to pour in, asking what football team should be named national champion.

This problem is entirely too intricate a matter for the limited brain capacity of this entry. There is no question as to the fact that among the unheaten teams who were not even tied Notre Dame fought its way through the hardest field. But when it comes to saying that Notre Dame could beat Pittsburgh or that Notre Dame could beat Purdue or that Pittsburgh could beat Purdue—that is something else again.

Each of these three teams had strong lines and exceptional backfields. They all proved they could play a lot of football. Among them they won 26 games without dropping a decision, which is fair enough. All three had to beat a flock of good teams to get by. Notre Dame beat Wisconsin, 19 to 0. Purdue beat Wisconsin, 13 to 0. Notre Dame beat Carnegie Tech, 7 to 0. Pittsburgh beat Carnegie Tech, 34 to 13. But comparative scores are hard to work with, if you intend to get anywhere.

The Army team that Pittsburgh beat, 7 to 0, was one of the best teams in the country. The Army all the year and one man, who knows the strength of the Western conference can understand what this means. It might be stated here that Illinois has also a conference record that averages a championship every two and a quarter years for the last 17 years.

The Illinois team that wound up its season against Ohio State was one of the strongest teams in the country. The Stanford team was the Harvard team that beat Yale. A lot depended through the season on just what dates certain teams met certain rivals.

There was a big difference in the same team from one week to another, due largely to schedule arrangements. Those teams facing hard schedules had much heavier handicaps to overcome.

THE FASTEST BACK.
L. H. G. wants to know who the fastest back of the year was. If any one can think of a faster back than Jack Elder, of Notre Dame, he will be entitled to some sort of prize. Elder was fast enough to set a new indoor mark for 70 yards—fast enough to beat Percy Williams, who in turn was fast enough to win the 100 and 200 meters at Amsterdam.

Elder is one of the quickest starters who ever played football—an art that means everything where the first few steps tell a big part of the story.

Ellis, of Yale, was another fast sprinter, one of the fastest of the lot. Cagle, of the Army; Mays, of Harvard; and Umana, of Pitt, were among the fastest, but Elder probably could outstep any of them.

Southwestern Young Anderson Team Is Picked Joins Smokers

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Four members of the Texas Christian University football team which won the championship of the Southwest conference, were named on a team chosen by the Associated Press after a poll of the coaches, officials and sports writers of the area.

With the four Texas Christian players were two each from Southern Methodist University, Texas University and Baylor and one from Arkansas.

Howard Crabbs, Texas Christian quarterback, was named captain. He made the team without a dissenting vote.

OREGON READY FOR HARD TILT WITH 'GATORS

The Oregon Webfoots, acclimated through several southern games earlier in the season and by a lengthy train ride over the southern part of the United States to Miami, did not find the semi-tropical weather of Miami more disconcerting than did the 'Gators of Florida.

Weather predictions for tomorrow are for generally fair and warm weather. A light shower fell after today's workout had been completed.

The two teams, tipping the scales at approximately the same average weight, will take to the field tomorrow to dedicate Miami's new winter sports center with approximately the same records as to games won and lost in 1929. The Oregon aggregation has won seven of its contests and lost two, to Stanford and St. Mary's. Florida has a similar record, having lost two 1929 games, to Georgia Tech and Harvard. Both teams had regarded the games they lost as their hardest conflicts of the year.

LARGE CROWD.
Approximately 20,000 seats to the game had been sold tonight, according to officials of the University of Florida and members of the committee of 13 Miami businessmen who underwrote the game.

The local men believe that further ticket sales tomorrow might swell the attendance to 20,000 by the time the whistle blows.

Miami turned football-minded today with the arrival of the two squads of football players. The Oregon squad, 28 strong, was paraded through the main business streets of Miami behind a band after a reception at the train by civic officials and members of the Junior League.

Later, the northwesterners were guests of Mayor C. H. Reeder, of Miami, at breakfast and were taken for a tour of the city of the Miami area.

MISUNDERSTANDING.
The Florida team, arriving on the same train with the Webfoots, was whisked away from the station through a misunderstanding and did not participate in the reception. Later it was found that the Gators had been taken to the hotel where they were to stay, and the misunderstanding was cleared up.

Indication that both coaches believed the battle would be brisk was seen in announcement that regulars would start the game. Coach Bachman has frequently used what he terms his "shoot troops" to open a contest, shifting his regulars into the lineup later.

Three Florida seniors have been named in the starting lineup for the final college game tomorrow. They are Captain Rainey Cawthon, Reeves, and Clyde Crabtree. Other seniors on the squad are Val Sickel, Green, Goodred, Houser, Haines and Beldwin.

Entertainment of both teams, interrupted today, will be continued tomorrow, when the Gators will leave Sunday for Eugene and the Florida 'Gators will leave the same day for Gainesville.

Commissioner of the Southern League will see the opening of metropolitan Miami's winter sports season, has been designated as Oregon-Florida Day in Miami by Mayor Reeder.

Martin Approves Writers' League

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 6.—(AP)—John D. Martin, president of the Southern League, today approved the Southern Association Sports Writers' club, formed at the minor league convention.

"One of the happiest outcomes of the national association meeting at Chattanooga was the organization of the Southern League Association of Sports Writers," said Mr. Martin today.

This movement will result, in his judgment, in great benefit to the national game in Southern league territory. It will be a pleasure to the president and directors of the league to cooperate to the fullest extent in the purpose of our good friends, the newspapermen, in this worthy enterprise.

Zipp Newman, of Birmingham, heads the organization as president and a board of directors includes a sports writer in each city holding membership in the Southern league.

Here we have the fighting Art Shires, the scrappy member of the Chicago White Sox, who Monday night will meet Dan Day, of Cleveland, at the Chicago stadium. Dan is a boy friend of Lena Blackburne, whom Art lately had quite a bit of trouble with the ring.

The convention went on record as "disrespecting" invasion of halls of education while students are still occupied with affairs of learning.

The national board of arbitration, baseball's court, failed to reduce the suspension of the pennant winner in the Arizona league, the case being left open for submission of further testimony.

CULLOP HEARD.
K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, spent a part of his last day in Chattanooga for the time being in hearing a plea from H. N. Cullup for free agency. Nick, who hit and threw long distances while playing the Brooklyn outfield, for a short while, thought his transfer to Atlanta, of the Southern Association, was not all that it should have been, according to the strict letter of the baseball law. Commissioner Landis heard the player, R. J. Spiller, of the Atlanta club, and Wilbert Robinson, of Brooklyn. The decision will come later. Cullup, the meantime, has been transferred by Atlanta to Minneapolis.

Before the baseball men left for their homes they passed resolutions of tribute to the memory of two league presidents and four club executives who have died during the year. PORAT, SCOTT FACE CHANCES NEXT MONDAY

By Frank Getty.

United News Sports Editor.
NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(United News).—The next heavyweight championship of the world may have its hand raised off for Jack Dempsey next Monday night, for Jack is to referee the Scott-Von Porat battle in Madison Square Garden and either Phil or Otto may yet qualify for the vacant title.

Certainly a decisive victory for either the Englishman or the Norwegian would put the winner close to the top. He would be the boxing business than Jack Sharkey, who is waiting for his next opponent to be named.

With Max Schmeling definitely lined up as the challenger, the Scott-Von Porat affair takes on added importance. Madison Square Garden is going to make a mighty effort to keep control of the boxing business, and will reward Monday night's winner with some lucrative guarantees.

MAX COMING.
Schmeling is coming here to meet an opponent, as yet unnamed, at Atlantic City on Washington's birthday. The promoters, who know a lot more about the boxing business than the Madison Square Garden crowd but haven't as much mazzama, are after Sharkey as the German's opponent.

Failing to get Sharkey, the promoters will go after the winner of the Scott-Von Porat fight, which will not do the winner a bit of harm financially, whatever the outcome of the negotiations.

There is every reason, therefore, for the boys to give their best Monday night. Dempsey, as each is a reserved, cautious young man with some business sense, it is barely possible that the bout will be terrible. It is more likely that it will be quite a brawl, with Otto throwing his monstrous right hand of his and Philip jabbing and running until the Norwegian is slowed down to a walk.

OPINION DIVIDED.
Opinion in static circles is divided as to the probable outcome of the bout. The odds favor Von Porat, but they are slight and the best offered is 6 to 5 on Otto.

Scott has gained in favor during the week, since he is recognized as the smarter boxer of the two. The Englishman was flattened by Knute Hansen, felled by Monte Munn and Pierre Charles and considerably damaged by fighters with a lot less wallop than the Norwegian from the mid-Pacific. Scott, who always got up, save in the Hansen affair, when he claimed to have been felled.

FAIR TARGET.
Otto's lantern jaw presents a fair target for a boxer of Scott's ability, but the Englishman has no reputation as a puncher and the chances are that if he wins it will be on points. Von Porat is rugged, a slow starter who keeps persistently after his man, a dangerous hitter at all times. He is awkward and rather slow-witted, quite in contrast to Scott.

Given two big able-bodied men with the qualifications, a wise picker would put his money on Scott. But the fans love to watch the wallpapers go slapping into action, and are willing to back their favorites. Hence the odds on Otto.
